

PROGRAM HISTORY OF THE CHILD, YOUTH AND FAMILY COMMITTEE

One of the ways that this Committee accomplishes its purpose is through continuing education events. The Committee has made positive connections with other organizations and agencies in San Diego. In addition, the Committee has joined forces with the Public Education and Media Committee to promote the "Youth Violence Prevention - Warning Signs" education outreach program.

The Child, Youth and Family Committee works to interface with the community at large, organizations, agencies and mental health professionals, all of whom work with the children and adolescents of San Diego. Through collaboration and networking, we strive to promote awareness and to educate and empower those in the San Diego community who work with children and families; including parents, teachers, other school personnel, coaches, and a variety of mental health professionals. Ultimately, the Committee aims to help San Diego children and youth achieve their true educational, social and emotional potential.
